

Glacier Canyon

An impressive masterpiece of nature, the Glacier Canyon was formed by the lower Grindelwald glacier, which over time carved its way through the rock in this area. Sadly the lower glacier no longer exists, but the canyon itself is now thriving as a popular destination for a unique sensory walk through its exposed rock galleries and tunnels. One of the highlights is the 170m<sup>2</sup> SPIDERWEB which spans the canyon, providing visitors with a thrilling net platform 7 meters above the roaring Lütschine river.
